

Preface

Our Tenth Anniversary Year

Chris Matthew Sciabarra

With this issue, The Journal of Ayn Rand Studies begins its tenth year of publication. We hope our readers have enjoyed the intellectual fireworks on display here, and we look forward to providing you with many thought-provoking essays in the future.

This issue—Volume 10, Number 1—features a number of comprehensive essays on subjects that range across the spectrum of philosophy. Our next issue—Volume 10, Number 2—spotlights our long overdue symposium on Friedrich Nietzsche and Ayn Rand.

In celebrating this tenth anniversary, we should note, however, how deeply saddened we are by the recent loss of one of our founding advisory board members and featured authors, Larry J. Sechrest. In addition to being a superb thinker and writer in the field of economics, Larry was a dear personal friend, and he will be greatly missed. We dedicate this issue to his memory.